468885	The Chantry Derby Road Ashbourne Derbyshire DE6 1BE	Non-Conformist church, attached railings, gatepiers and boundary wall. c1800, with later C19 remodelling. Endowed by Mr John Cooper of London, formerly of Ashbourne, d.1808. Red brick, laid to Flemish bond, with ashlar sandstone dressings, coped gable to front and Welsh slated roof. FRONT (north-east) ELEVATION: wide pedimented gable rising from a plain brick plinth with ashlar plinth band. Central doorway with curved heads to panelled and part-glazed double doors with curved heads beneath a banded segmental arch. This is now enclosed by a late C19 open porch with semi-circular arched openings, the arches and keystones of moulded ashlar. Above, a parapet balustrade with moulded balusters. Flanking the porch are tall window openings rising from a plain cill band with stilted semi-circular arched heads of ashlar sandstone, below gauged brick outer arches. Each window opening is set back within a wider arch headed opening, also with gauged brickwork to the arch. The arches rise from a moulded base expressed as an interrupted band across the elevation, which is set above an interrupted string course. Between the outer openings, a central arched window opening rises from the level of the balustrade. The opening is subdivided into 2 semi-circular headed lights supporting a circular light, all in ashlar, the central mullion a circular column with a foliated capital. Window frames with glazing bars and margin lights. Low wall to street frontage with ramped central section carrying porch front wall. Entrances to either side with low, square, ashlar capped gatepiers supporting ornamental cast-iron gates. Matching railings to ramped walling and to north-east corner of chapel,	II	15/10/1997

488228	24 Union Street Ashbourne Derbyshire DE6 1FG	Town house. Mid C18. Red brick, mostly in stretcher bond with some headers; Staffordshire blue tile roof with brick end stacks, that to left foreshortened. Plan: central hall and flanking rooms, with projecting stair tower to rear. 3 storeys. Front elevation has central projecting bay, with steps and railings rising to 6-panelled door set under segmental arch; keyed lintel over 6/6-pane sash above, with at attic storey a 3/3-pane sash set under continuous dentilled eaves. Flanking the door, in each outer bay, are 6/6-pane sashes set under segmental arches with panelled shutters. To rear is central projecting stair turret with hipped roof and keyed lintel over early C19 door with margin panes, and 6/6-pane sashes except 3/3-pane to second floor, all under keyed lintels. Interior not inspected. This survives as an externally complete town house of the mid C18 (most probably c1770) which on its front elevation is distinguished by its central projecting bay, the ground floor being raised after the fashion of the 'piano nobile' as promulgated by Palladio and his followers in C18 England. It has retained a complete set of sash windows, probably of the early C19 and comprises a good example of a provincial builder's response to national trends in domestic architecture.	II	23/10/2001

79800	St John The Baptist Church Buxton Road Ashbourne Derbyshire	Previously Grade C - upgraded to Grade II* on 24.11.10 1871 by Mr Bradford MATERIALS: Rock-faced gritstone with freestone dressings, slate roofs. PLAN: Nave with lower apsidal chancel, west tower, north-east vestry. EXTERIOR: The church is in a consistent 'Rundbogenstil', or neo-Norman, style. It has a battered plinth, and the windows are consistent in having recessed roll-moulded surrounds and, in nave and chancel, iron-frame 2-light Italianate glazing. In the unbuttressed 3-stage tower the lower stage is the porch. Its round-headed doorway has 2 orders of nook shafts with leaf capitals, roll-moulded arch, and tympanum with inscription from Matthew's Gospel. The second stage has a 2-light round-headed west window with plate tracery, above which are clock faces in circular frames in west, north and south walls. Triple round-headed belfry windows are recessed beneath a corbel table and incorporate shafts with cushion capitals. The parapet, still rock-faced, includes arcading with alternate blind and pierced arches. The 6-bay nave has angle buttresses in the south and north walls, of which the north-east also incorporates a vestry stack. The nave has single-light windows and a corbel table. Its roof has 2 gabled ventilators. The chancel has a richer Lombard frieze below the eaves, and smaller round-headed windows. The vestry, under a separate gabled roof, has a shoulder-headed doorway, round-headed windows similar to the remainder of the church but with margin-lit sashes. INTERIOR: Walls are plastered and painted panels, below painted plaster vaults. A basilican plan is provided by arcades of cast-iron columns by Andrew Handyside of Derby, with shaft rings and moulded capitals. The columns support a nave tunnel vault with iron ribs and ceiling roses, and vaulted aisle bays. The apse is also plaster-vaulted with cast-iron ribs on iron wall shafts. The chancel arch is plain. The west wall has a blind round-headed recess. PRINCIPAL FIXTURES: The neo-Norman theme is extended to the	IISTAR	14/02/1974

		fittings. A west gallery has a blind arcaded front. The round font has a cable moulding around the top of the short round stem. Nave benches have square-headed ends with shouldered round-headed panels, and incorporate hat and glove hooks. (Some benches have been removed from the east end.) The communion rail, which has a semi-circular projection in the centre, has turned balusters. The polygonal pulpit is late C20 and in a late-medieval style. Two wall tablets are Gothic with crocketed gables, to Francis Wright (d 1873) and his brother. SUBSIDIARY FEATURES: The entrance to the churchyard from Buxton Road comprises iron railings with fleur-de-lis finials, on a dwarf retaining wall. Between square-section gate piers, which have 4-way gables, are iron gates, which have similar detail to the railings. (A section of railings and retaining wall on the north side of the gate piers has been removed.) Inside the gates is diamond-pattern stone paving leading to stone steps and piers, similar to the gate piers, on which cast-iron lamp posts (with replaced lights) are mounted. HISTORY: Built as a Free Church at the expense of Francis Wright of Osmaston, by Mr Bradford. Handysides, the ironmasters involved in the construction, were a leading foundry based in Derby whose works are found in India and Mexico, as well as in London's Olympia and the Albert Bridge. There are echoes of mid-C19 cast iron construction in French architecture here, a measure of the church's unusual character. SOURCES: Pevsner, N., (revised E. Williamson), The Buildings of England: Derbyshire (1978), 62. REASONS FOR DESIGNATION: The church of St John, Ashbourne, is designated at Grade II* for the following principal reasons: * The church is especially notable for its remarkably consistent Rundbogenstil, extending to the interior and to the fittings. * It is a good and scarce example of the use of internal iron framing in church architecture, provided by a local notable foundry. * Its novelty of form reflects

		the independence of its foundation as a free church, founded by a single donor. * The church, with its railings, gates, piers and steps, is prominently sited on the north side of the town centre and makes an important contribution to the historic townscape.

79890	16 Market Place Ashbourne Derbyshire DE6 1ES	Amended Description 16.02.10 A shop with domestic accommodation above. Mid C18th or early C19th facade and C19/C20 alterations. It is timber-framed with a red brick facade and parapetted front roof. The rear wings are red brick and stuccoed timber-frame with plain tiled roof. There is a brick stack to the main roof. The front has 3 storeys, the rear has two storeys and an attic. There is a two window range on the first floor to the front of 1/1 sashes until stucco lintels with C20 windows above. The ground floor has a C20 shop front. An alley to the right leads to a rear entrance which has a panelled door with an over-light. The whitewashed walls have heavy large-panel framing visible. The rear wing wall facing north-west has square panel framing with herringbone brick nogging. The rear has various casements and a truncated brick stack. INTERIOR. The shop has been opened out and has C20 fittings but retains chamfered bridging beams and a corner post visible to the rear in the alley wall. The first floor front room has areas of heavy scantling framing visible, part close studded, part square panel and one panel with diagonal studding. There are some traces of old red paint. The large stack has a C20 brick front. There is a chamfered bridging beam, which is supported on a large jowled post and the rafters are chamfered. there is a winder stair which is partly of early date and a window facing the alley. In a cupboard are small remains of painted decoration including the possible initials 'FA'. Above ground floor level chamfered bridging beams survive and areas of framing are visible to the rear. On the second floor a wall post is visible in one corner but the rooms are otherwise of C19 character. The front roof could not be accessed but is likely to be C19. The roof of the upper rear wing has a pair of upper cruck blades with yoke, which support a pair of heavy purlins with curved windbraces, The other end of the purlins rest on a later brick gable end wall.
