		bay, with giant Corinthian pilasters, topped by a plain entablature and moulded segmental pediment with laurel leaf circle, flanked by swags to centre and swagged urn finial above. To base it has a bolection moulded doorcase with fluted keystone, now filled by glazing bar sash. To either side of the bay are blocked windows with flat gauged brick arches with stone keystones. Above, in central bay, is an original C18 glazing bar sash in moulded surround. To either side are plain blocked windows. Between the central sashes are large crude 'S' scrolls which form a sort of pediment to the lower window. South elevation of the west wing has somewhat mutilated ground floor with two glazing bar sashes to west, both with flat brick arches and stone keystones which continue above as stone lintels. To east is a shallower blocked window, also with flat arch and stone keystone, but the stone lintel is considerably higher. Beyond to east, is an inserted doorcase and door. Above, four windows with alternating bolection and stepped moulded surrounds, two western ones having glazing bar sashes, whilst eastern one is partly blocked with a narrower glazing bar sash and the one between is completely blocked. All these windows project upwards into the cornice above. Interior has two fine staircases, a C17 oak, open welled dog- leg staircase with shaped splat balusters, moulded handrail, diamond finials and pendentives and an C18, part dogleg, and part winder staircase. This has moulded oak handrail and turned balusters, with carved acanthus leaf knobs, between which have been inserted iron twists. Excellent plasterwork through both wings with carved moulded cornices to all C17 first floor rooms. First floor landing to C17 wing has bolection moulded plaster panelling to one wall and large crude swags over to doorcases. Small north bedroom and the landing have later, probably early C18, plasterwork ovals on ceilings of leaves and fruit, cruder, but similar to those at Sudbury Hall. C17 wing
